WEATHER OF CONCERN

Weather of Concern

- A series of storms will move into California today bringing heavy rain, strong winds and mountain snow through early Thursday morning.

Active Weather Warnings, Watches and Advisories by County:

http://www.wrh.noaa.gov/sto/brief/wwa_bc_cal.php

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA

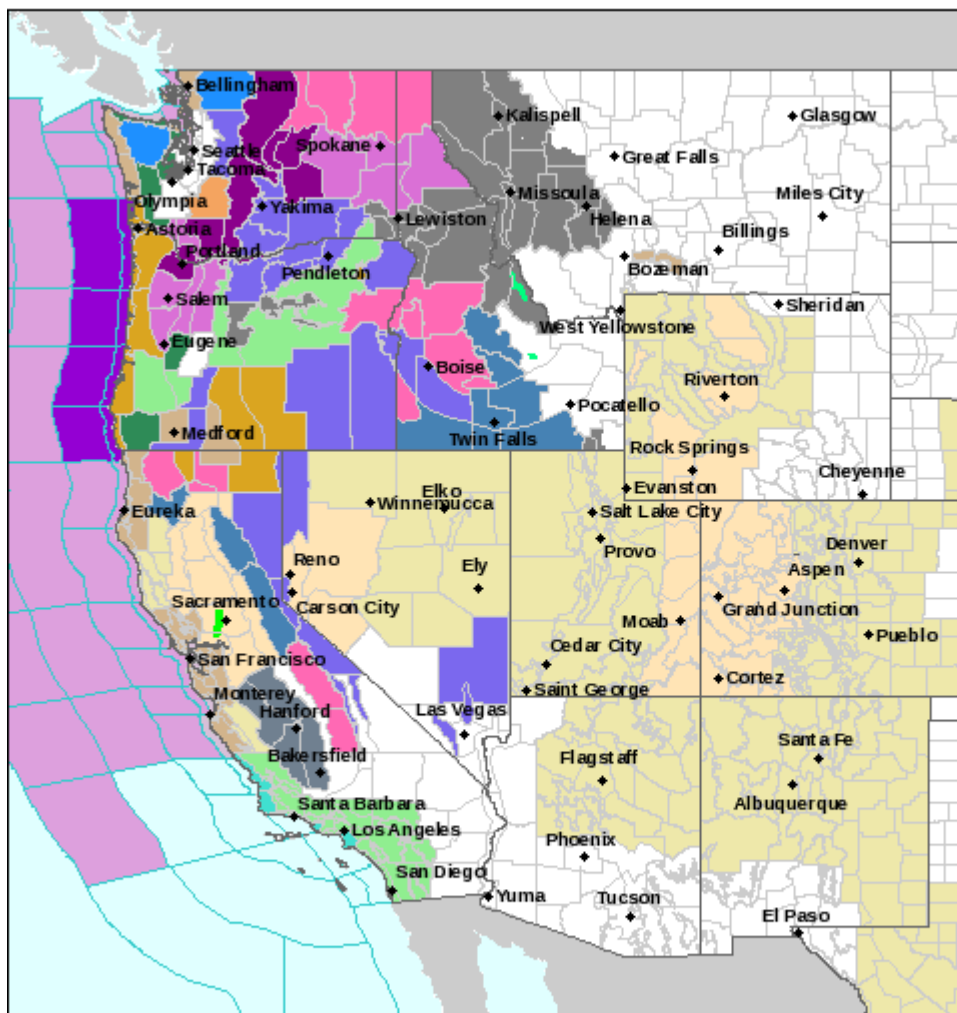

Another series of windy and rather wet storms will be moving through the region over the next week. The first in the series will begin to move ashore in the northwest portion of the region and spread inland overnight and Wednesday. There won't be much break between systems Thursday and Saturday with the brunt of two more systems expected Friday and Sunday. Most areas of the region will see periods of heavy precipitation with each of these systems, and mountain travel will again become challenging. Wednesday's system looks like the warmest of the group, Friday's the coldest one. Snow levels Wednesday will lower to around 4000 feet in the north and 7000 feet in the south, then a little lower Wednesday night. Friday's system will have snow levels around 2000-3000 feet in the north and as low as 4000 feet in the south. Windy conditions will come in with each of these systems. The windiest mountain areas will again see gusts of 45-65 mph, but most areas will have gusts less than 50 mph. The problem of soft, saturated soils will continue to make downed trees possible. Area water courses will again run rather high as well.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

A weak ridge of high pressure will maintain near normal temperatures and low humidity across most of the region today. Maximum temperatures will be in the mid 40s to mid 50s across the mountains and upper 50s and 60s in the valleys. Minimum humidity will be mainly between 15% and 30% away from the San Joaquin Valley. Three storms will bring periods of rain to the area late Wednesday afternoon through Monday night. Most foothill and mountain locations will receive between 6 and 12 inches of rainfall and most coastal and valley locations will receive between 3 and 6 inches of rainfall through Monday night. The snow level will be mainly between 4,000 and 5,000 feet for most of this period. South to west winds of 20 to 40 mph with gusts to 60 mph will surface across the wind prone mountain and desert areas at times Wednesday afternoon through Monday night. Temperatures will cool a little Wednesday then be around 10 degrees below normal Thursday through Monday.
